Some Pros About the Rose

Roses are a versatile and valuable plant in any landscape. With so many colorful varieties, disease-resistant hybrids and trainable forms, there is a rose that can fit into any landscape. In our warmer climate of Southern California, we are spoiled because of our extended flowering season. Nearly all of the roses grown here bloom for nine months of the year.

Top 5 ways to ensure your roses will thrive!

5. Mulch your roses with a two to four inch layer of bark or compost to control weeds, keep moisture in the soil and protect the roots.
4. Fertilize and protect your roses at the same time with Bayer All-In-One Rose Care.

3. Water your rose bushes regularly, but make sure the soil drains well.
2. Prune old flowers to promote new blooms. Also, thin out dead, weak and old growth.

1. Pick a location in your landscape that gets full sun and good air circulation. Try not to plant where the roots will be competing with other plants.
